

72 billion land animals are killed every year. That's 10 times the entire human population, and it equates to the slaughter of 8 million animals every hour. Every single one of them is a sentient individual.

The dairy industry is worse than the meat industry, as the cows are exploited before they're all slaughtered in the end. They're repeatedly raped so that they become pregnant and produce milk, yet their newborn calves are removed and killed so we can drink their mother's milk instead.

All male chicks born out of the egg industry are thrown into a meat grinder alive or suffocated in bags only minutes after hatching, as they are of no use.
